

"I imagine that you may deduce an apt moral from my tale; one that may direct you..." (15).

Frankenstein
Take-home Essay

Instructions: Respond to the following prompt in a typed essay with 12-point Times or Arial font, doubled-spaced, and one inch margins, with no more than three pages. You must have a minimum of three excerpts, properly cited, from Frankenstein.

Go to the McCallum Writing Center for help on this composition; however, be aware the last day for help is 5/13/16.

Due: Monday, May 16th for "A" day, Tuesday, May 17th for "B" day, at the beginning of class. No late papers will be accepted and it must be typed and printed before the bell rings; you may email the essay only if you immediately follow up to make sure it was attached and sent correctly. No excuses for missing this deadline—plan ahead (check printers and computers, etc. before the due date).

This will comprise 1/3rd of your Fall Semester Exam grade.

Prompt:

Considering all possible thematic lessons and morals in Frankenstein, choose one to explain how Mary Shelly's purpose in writing this novel elevated it to the level of classic literature.

Your essay must include:

Thesis (and introduction)

Inference • Evidence • Commentary:
for all body paragraphs

Conclusion